REPORT TO THE BOARD

To the Commissioner of Education:

Viewed from any and every conceivable angle an effective library extension agency which takes a positive stand in giving prompt and practical assistance to libraries large and small throughout the state is a good investment. We do not pretend to have solved with great brilliance the major problems of library development in this Commonwealth. We have made a small beginning this past year in opening up one vast area—that of offering inhabitants of small municipalities an experience with efficient library service—a taste of libraries 1954 style.

A recent nationwide survey has shown that only about 17% of Americans are book readers. Another poll reveals that as a nation we spend annually four times as much on comic books as for public library books—that ninety million comic books are read monthly.

We hastily follow these discouraging items of information by reporting that in the 1953-54 fiscal year, the General Court increased the appropriation of the Division of Library Extension by approximately fifteen percent. In the same fiscal year the activities and services of the Division showed an increase of slightly more than 16% over the previous fiscal year. We feel this represents a worthwhile return on the taxpayers' investment and also indicates that Massachusetts has a good reading public. If we can get books for readers, we can produce readers for books!

In November 1953, Governor Herter reappointed Stacy B. Southworth to a fourth five-year term as Chairman of the Board of Library Commissioners. Governor Herter made the official announcement of this appointment in Braintree at the dedication of the new Thayer Memorial Library of which Mr. Southworth is Chairman of the Board of Library Trustees. John D. Kelley of Somerville was reappointed in February 1954 by Governor Herter to a second five-year term as a member of the Board of Library Commissioners.

At the close of the 1954 fiscal year funds were appropriated to install a dumb waiter in the Department of Education Building. This Division probably stands to benefit most from this improvement because of our location on the top floor and the vast amount of bulk mailing which must be done in offering inter-library loan services to the public, school and state institution libraries throughout the state. We also welcome this innovation as a means of lessening the personnel turnover in the position of junior-clerk (male). The past year witnessed three resignations of persons in this position with resulting delays in procuring replacements and interruptions of our inter-library loan activities.

Public Libraries Film Cooperative

Among Massachusetts public librarians are many who feel that films are a significant source of information and should be available to people through public libraries. For many reasons the development of a film collection is neither feasible nor within the pocketbook of the average public library. Therefore, the extension of film service through the public library to the community requires novel cooperative arrangements with circulation of films from a central pool. In the spring of 1954 following a series of discussion and exploratory meetings co-sponsored by this Division and the Department's Office of Audio-

Visual Education, the Public Libraries Film Cooperative was initiated. Fifteen public libraries and one of the Division's Regional Library Centers are purchasing films for permanent deposit in the Office of Audio-Visual Education. The project will be administered by the Office of Audio-Visual Education. The films are pooled for the free use of all participating libraries.

The Massachusetts Library Aid Association, Inc.

With funds allocated by the Massachusetts Library Aid Association, an incorporated "friends of libraries" group on the state level, three excellent films on library service were purchased and are on deposit here for the free use of all public libraries in the state. "The Impressionable Years", "The Library: A Family Affair", and "The Library Story" were all filmed in buildings of highly functional design and depict the various services and activities of a modern public library in action. They can well be used by library trustees with appropriating bodies to point up the need for better appropriations to permit building renovations and improvements or to allow for additional library services. The libraries themselves could show the films at adult gatherings, clubs, civic groups, etc., to stimulate greater citizen interest in the library and its activities.

The Idea Takes Root

From October 1, 1950 through September 30, 1952, this Division had an opportunity to experiment and develop at ground level a flexible working pattern for improving library service in small communities. The experiment was known as the Western Massachusetts Library Federation and was financed by a $36,500 grant from Marshall Field III. In the 1953-54 budget, funds were appropriated to allow for an enlargement and expansion of the limited regional library services which had been offered from the State Regional Library Center in Greenfield since 1939. The demonstration project financed by private funds has been doubly successful—first, from the angle of public response to the services offered under the W.M.L.F., and secondly in arousing public sentiment to the point where the citizens requested of their legislators additional state funds to continue the demonstration activities.

After being located in rent free quarters in the Greenfield Public Library for over ten years, the office of the State Regional Library Center was moved to rented quarters on 4 Fiske Avenue in Greenfield. Occupying an entire floor of a warehouse building, space is provided for book stacks, offices and the garaging of the bookmobile and suburban carry-all which vehicles furnish transportation for the itinerant staff. The staff was doubled by the addition of a regional librarian, a children's library specialist, and a library aide.

The record of achievements which the "new look" Regional operation has rolled up in its first year is a noteworthy one. Films have been borrowed by 35 towns in the area for 765 showings to a total audience of 42,375 people. Nine book review sessions, 3 workshops in cataloging and reference, 25 story hours, 16 talks to local groups and clubs, 17 advisory visits to local libraries, 2 radio broadcasts and one television program have been scheduled by the Regional Librarian and Children's Library Specialist.

The "new look" has been genuinely accepted by the 38 towns in Franklin and Hampshire counties. Staff members report the work is "stimulating and rewarding". Librarians and trustees receive the services with great enthusiasm as the much needed booster shot to the local library services which are necessarily restricted by limited financial resources.

Needed — Larger Quarters!

It is difficult to find polite terms with which to describe the present crowded conditions of the headquarters of this Division. The present operations are greatly handicapped! Much time is lost and effort wasted with resultant inefficiencies because the service requirements of this agency have long outgrown the limited and inadequate accommodations. Do we restrict our services to those which can be confined reasonably well within the limitations of our present inadequate physical plant? That would seem to be a retrogressive measure and completely out of step with past performances. If we forge ahead to make library extension the optimum service it should be in this great Commonwealth with its proud library traditions we must face the very real need of more adequate quarters and facilities for this agency.
